Dear Mr Harris,

Further to our correspondence in July 1981, regarding review of domiciliary midwives fees.

I would be interested to know what action is being taken, if any, by the Economic Welfare Committee in response to their communications with the Minister of Health, concerning domiciliary midwives fees. Several months have now elapsed since the initial letter was sent to the Minister, and it is now a year since the fees were last reviewed.

Yours sincerely,

Lyn McLean,
Domiciliary Midwife.

Dear Ms McLean

Thank you for your letter of 30 September concerning fees for domiciliary midwives.

The Minister of Health recently replied to the letter sent by the Economic Welfare Committee. In this reply he said that the fees are reviewed annually by government. He could give no assurance that the fees would be increased in the coming year but our request would be borne in mind when consideration is given to the extension of health benefits later this year.

The Association is now waiting to see what happens in the review of benefits.

Yours faithfully

Glenn Harris
