To Whom it may concern:

I'm writing to inquire about the practice of midwifery.

I'm a lay midwife / self taught, by and through other women - I participate in at home, natural drugless births. I've been doing births and teaching classes for 3 years. I work alone / and with a physician.

I'm interested in relocating to New Zealand, and would like information about the practice of midwifery in your country ie. - are there any midwives needed - is there certification for lay midwives - is it legal to practice there? - are people practicing illegally like the US. - what is the political climate like - is it financially feasible for one to support themselves as a midwife. - are women interested in New - more natural birth techniques - are there a lot of hospital births still happening there - are there any "alternative birth centers - My man will be coming with me - he's a carpenter well versed in all phases - what is the job market like in construction / are there any jobs available?

Your responses will be greatly appreciated.

Much love & light,

Judith Carroll
